

Fairview Formation, Kenton County, Outer Bluegrass

Shale and limestone in the 500-million-year-old (Ordovician) Fairview Formation exposed at this roadcut on I-75 is common as bedrock in Kenton County, and can cause problems for builders because the shales in the unit can swell when exposed to water. Photo by Richard Smath, Kentucky Geological Survey.